Chairman's message

In a global environment still marked by geopolitical uncertainties, inflationary pressures, and sustained claims activity, the year 2024 highlighted the resilience and strength of CCR.

Thanks to a rigorous underwriting strategy, prudent risk management, and a solid presence in both national and international markets, the company continued its development, reaffirming its position as a regional leader.

On the macroeconomic front, Algeria maintained positive momentum with GDP growth of 3.8% and an overall stable financial situation.

The national insurance sector followed this trend, recording 4.4% growth in 2024 and generating total revenues of over DZD 181 billion.

In reinsurance, national market cessions for 2024 remained relatively stable, standing at DZD 60.62 billion according to the Ministry of Finance, compared with DZD 60.57 billion in 2023, with CCR's market share reaching 66.3%.

As for international acceptances, the company achieved for the first time results exceeding DZD 10 billion, representing 20% of revenues compared to 16% in 2023.

Against this favorable backdrop, CCR delivered remarkable performances:

- Total revenue up 7.5%, reaching DZD 50,057 million,
- Net profit up 21.8%, reaching DZD 7,635 million,
- A solvency margin well above regulatory requirements, amounting to DZD 56,515 million,
- Strong technical indicators, with a combined ratio of 79.13% and controlled claims levels.

The year was also marked by key structural progress:

- Strengthening of governance and compliance framework,
- International expansion into high-potential markets,
- Continued efforts in the digitalization of internal processes,
- Development of new partnerships with national and regional cedants.

These achievements are the result of a collective commitment: that of our teams, our partners, and our leadership.

In 2025, CCR will continue its growth momentum with a reaffirmed ambition: to become a benchmark player in sustainable, responsible, and innovative reinsurance.

See you in 2025!

About CCR

The Compagnie Centrale de Réassurance (CCR) is a key player in Algeria's reinsurance industry, wholly owned by the State through the Ministry of Finance. Established in 1973, its mission is to strengthen and structure the national reinsurance market by providing reliable coverage tailored to the sector's needs.

Specialized in underwriting treaty and facultative reinsurance risks, CCR operates both nationally and internationally, covering all lines of business in property, casualty, and life. Its role goes beyond traditional reinsurance: it serves as a true pillar of the Algerian market's financial stability.

CCR also manages several strategic insurance pools, including the Algerian Catastrophe Insurance Pool (ACIP), Decennial Civil Liability, and Special Risks. These mechanisms enhance the sector's resilience to major systemic risks, particularly natural disasters, by providing primary insurers with a safety net guaranteed by the State.

Thanks to its unique positioning, financial strength, and recognized expertise, CCR plays a fundamental role in the sustainable development of Algeria's insurance sector, thereby contributing to the protection of both citizens and businesses.

► Our Values

CCR builds its culture on a foundation of strong values that guide all its actions, both internally and with its partners.

Leadership, responsibility, and commitment to promises

CCR fully assumes its role as a reference player in both the national and international markets, engaging with its partners with rigor and consistency.

Listening, advice, and ongoing support

Client support lies at the core of CCR's mission, driven by a commitment to closeness, responsiveness, and long-term trust.

Professionalism and integrity

Operational excellence, technical competence, and ethical conduct form the foundation of CCR's relationships with all stakeholders.

Transparency

CCR is committed to providing clear, reliable, and accessible communication, reinforcing the confidence of insurers, institutions, and partners.

Financial solidity and disciplined risk appetite

Backed by robust solvency, CCR implements a responsible underwriting and investment strategy, striking a balance between performance and safety.

Efficient management of a diversified portfolio

Leveraging its strategic vision and extensive expertise, CCR oversees a diversified and balanced portfolio, fully aligned with international best practices.

► Governance & Internal Management

CCR relies on clear and rigorous governance, overseen by a Board of Directors and its committees, which define strategic directions in line with best practices. Executive management ensures operational oversight, supported by a robust internal control system.

The decision-making process is based on seamless communication, transparent reporting, and regular internal and external audits. Risk management is embedded at every level, with proactive monitoring and tailored action plans.

Finally, CCR invests in talent development through training programs and talent management initiatives. This integrated approach supports sustainable performance and long-term value creation.

► Board of directors

The Board of Directors plays a central role in CCR's governance. It is responsible for defining strategic directions, approving major action plans, and overseeing the overall management of the company.

Composed of members with complementary and diverse expertise, the Board ensures a balance between shareholder representation, independence, and professionalism. This diversity enhances the quality of discussions and the relevance of decisions.

The Board meets regularly according to a predetermined schedule, holding Ordinary and Extraordinary General Meetings as needed. Each meeting is carefully prepared, with comprehensive documentation enabling directors to make well-informed decisions.

The Board of Directors is also committed to upholding principles of ethics and transparency, thereby ensuring stakeholder trust and the company's long-term sustainability.

Organisational structure

► Our Strategic Objectives

CCR pursues a development strategy based on sustainable performance, technical excellence, and financial strength. This ambition revolves around six key pillars, presented visually below:

- Financial Strength: Maintain a high level of solvency in line with prudential requirements.
- Profitable Portfolio: Optimize the management of a diversified portfolio, balancing profitability and security.
- Controlled Risk Management: Implement a disciplined underwriting policy aligned with the company's risk appetite.
- Strategic Partnerships: Develop new alliances in target markets to generate lasting synergies.
- Talent Development: Mobilize and enhance internal skills, particularly in underwriting and technical management.
- Creation of Synergies: Capture new opportunities in both national and international markets.

These priorities reflect CCR's commitment to consolidating its position as a reference player on the regional and international stage, while navigating market changes with agility, rigor, and ambition.

► Regional Benchmark – Solidifying a Leading Position

In an increasingly competitive regional environment, characterized by growing regulatory requirements and rapidly evolving client expectations, CCR reaffirms its status as a benchmark in the MENA reinsurance market.

In 2023, the rating agency AM Best recognized CCR's strong performance by ranking the company:

- 1st in the combined ratio (73.95%), reflecting rigorous and efficient technical management;
- 1st in the loss ratio (46.57%), illustrating a disciplined underwriting policy.

These results confirm CCR's ability to combine profitability with risk control while adhering to the highest international standards.

► Active Presence in Professional Bodies

CCR plays an active role in several professional organizations at the national, regional, and international levels. This involvement reflects its commitment to actively contributing to the development of the insurance and reinsurance sector, promoting best practices, and strengthening cooperation among market players.

Its regular participation in the work of these bodies enables CCR to:

- Monitor regulatory and technical developments in the sector,
- Strengthen its network of strategic partners,
- Represent the Algerian market in international discussions,
- Align with the highest standards of governance and performance.

Development & Strategy actions

To adapt to changes and address the new challenges posed by the evolving economic environment, CCR has redeployed its strategic plan in preparation for an increasingly complex future. To further strengthen its internal control framework, it has undertaken the following actions:

The unit plays a crucial role in protecting company data and ensuring business continuity in the event of an incident.

In an environment where information security is paramount, strict compliance with laws and regulations constitutes another essential pillar for CCR.

Information Systems Security

Information system security has become a critical priority for companies of all sizes. CCR's dedicated unit aims to ensure the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information. Security audits conducted by this unit help identify potential vulnerabilities and recommend corrective measures to strengthen the company's security posture. Compliance with RNSSI 2020, ISO 27001-27002, and EBIOS standards demonstrates CCR's commitment to best practices in information security. For example, the ISO 27001 standard is the only internationally auditable standard that defines the requirements for an Information Security Management System (ISMS). The use of the EBIOS Risk Manager method, recommended by ANSSI, provides a pragmatic approach to assessing cyber risks.

The Information Security unit works closely with other departments across CCR to integrate security into all operational aspects. This includes staff training on security best practices, implementation of robust access controls, and continuous system monitoring to detect and respond to security incidents.

Development & Strategy actions

Compliance

The compliance function is a fundamental pillar of the organization, particularly in the reinsurance sector, where trust and integrity are paramount. It ensures strict adherence to laws, regulations, and internal policies, directly contributing to risk management and maintaining the confidence of partners, clients, and other stakeholders. In a constantly evolving regulatory environment marked by increasing complexity, compliance is not just an obligation but a strategic imperative for the company's sustainability and reputation.

In 2024, efforts focused particularly on enhancing risk assessment capabilities and strengthening compliance policies to effectively address the sector's specific challenges. A major achievement during the past year was the rollout of an updated version of our Code of Conduct. This initiative, accompanied by comprehensive training sessions for all employees, reaffirmed our ethical values and clarified expectations regarding professional behavior. By providing a clear framework and precise guidelines, the strengthened code fosters a culture of integrity at all levels of the organization.

At the same time, CCR has significantly enhanced its non-compliance risk assessment processes. This proactive approach enables the company to identify and analyze potential risks more effectively, anticipate issues, and implement appropriate preventive measures. Close collaboration with the Legal, Finance, and Human Resources departments remains essential to ensure an integrated and consistent approach to compliance.

CCR operates in a complex regulatory environment, subject to a variety of laws and regulations specific to the reinsurance sector, including the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) for personal data protection, as well as national and international regulatory texts relevant to its business activities. CCR's compliance program is meticulously designed to meet these requirements and other applicable standards, ensuring full adherence to the legal and regulatory framework. Rigorous management of non-compliance risks is a top priority to prevent financial penalties, legal disputes, and reputational damage. The compliance framework is regularly reviewed and updated to incorporate regulatory changes and emerging risks. Internal audits conducted in 2024 confirmed the effectiveness of controls and identified opportunities for continuous improvement.

Among the notable achievements in 2024, in addition to employees' continued adherence to the Code of Conduct and the enhancement of risk assessment processes, the positive results of internal audits demonstrate the robustness of control mechanisms. For 2025, CCR plans to integrate new technologies to significantly improve its compliance monitoring and reporting capabilities. The goal is to have more efficient tools to detect potential risks in real time and generate accurate and comprehensive reports for management and regulatory authorities.

Development & Strategy actions

► Compliance

Promoting a culture of ethics and compliance remains a strategic priority. CCR's commitment is deeply embedded in its core values and is reflected in regular communication and training initiatives led by the compliance team. Beyond mandatory training, CCR actively encourages information sharing and open discussion on ethical and compliance matters. CCR's management fully supports the compliance function, recognizing its essential role in long-term success and its ability to operate responsibly and sustainably. The compliance governance structure is clearly defined, with responsibilities assigned at different levels of the organization and regular reporting to executive management and governance bodies.

In parallel with managing compliance-related risks, CCR has also developed sophisticated tools to assess and manage its financial risks.

Development & Strategy actions

Internal Capital Model

CCR has developed an internal capital model to accurately assess the capital required in light of its commitments and to strengthen its risk management. This internal model allows for a risk assessment that is more sensitive and tailored to the company than standardized regulatory approaches.

CCR's internal model is built on a framework covering the main types of risks the company faces: underwriting risk (natural catastrophes, mortality, etc.), market risk (interest rates, credit, equities, etc.), and operational risk. It employs advanced techniques such as stochastic modeling and scenario analysis to simulate future financial outcomes.

This internal capital model has been successfully submitted for validation by the competent regulatory authorities, confirming its compliance and reliability.

The use of this model provides CCR with several strategic advantages. It offers increased sensitivity to the company's specific risks, enabling more efficient capital allocation and resource optimization. Furthermore, it supports strategic business decisions by providing valuable insights for underwriting, pricing, and evaluating new opportunities.

The internal capital model is integrated into CCR's overall capital management framework and is used in the Own Risk and Solvency Assessment (ORSA) process. It also contributes to the development and optimization of the company's reinsurance strategy.

In conclusion, the internal capital model is a crucial strategic tool for CCR, enhancing its financial stability, risk management, and ability to make informed decisions in a complex and evolving reinsurance environment.

Risk assessment and management are key elements of CCR's overall strategy, also reflected in a structured corporate risk management policy.

Development & Strategy actions

Risk Management Policy

The Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) function is a fundamental pillar of CCR's strategic approach, aimed at ensuring the safety and sustainability of its operations.

In 2024, CCR continued to strengthen its risk management system through a dynamic process of risk identification, assessment, and mitigation.

This proactive approach enables informed decision-making, enhances operational resilience, and allows the company to effectively adapt to the challenges of the reinsurance market.

The internal capital model is a central element of this framework, providing an accurate view of the risk profile and supporting long-term safety and performance objectives. Promoting a culture of risk awareness and accountability remains a key priority at all levels of the organization.

All of these efforts in risk management and compliance directly support CCR's dynamic business strategy

Development & Strategy actions

On the Commercial side

- The 2024 financial year marked a dynamic phase in CCR's commercial strategy, aimed at consolidating its leadership in the reinsurance market and expanding its global influence, fully aligned with its long-term strategic objectives. This ambition was translated into proactive and targeted initiatives structured around several key areas:
 - Expansion of National and International Presence: CCR actively targeted both local and international markets through specific commercial actions. These efforts enabled the identification of new growth opportunities and strengthened relationships with key existing players, contributing to an overall 7.5% increase in revenue.
 - Skill Development and Support for the Local Market: The "CCR College" program played a central role in enhancing the skills of executives from local insurance companies. In 2024, a significant number of professionals benefited from the training provided, marking notable progress in supporting the sector. In collaboration with international partners, a rich program of training sessions, workshops, and internships was implemented, covering current topics led by recognized experts. Notably, 2024 saw an enhanced training offering combining workshops, seminars, and specialized internships to help national market participants develop their skills. CCR thus continues its commitment to strengthening the capacities of the insurance and reinsurance sector while consolidating its strategic market positioning.

CCR College has become a major strategic tool, reinforcing local expertise and the capabilities of market players. Through these initiatives, CCR confirms its commitment to sector development and its key role in supporting national companies in facing reinsurance market challenges.

- Global Strategic Partnerships: CCR's active participation in major international events in 2024 reflects its commitment to strengthening global connections. Key events such as the 34th General Arab Insurers Union (GAIF) Conference in Muscat -Oman, the 48th FANAF Edition in Mauritania, the Dubai World Insurance Conference, the Rendez-vous de Carthage in Tunis, the Rendez-Vous de Septembre in Monte-Carlo, the 28th African Reinsurance Forum of the OAA in Cairo, and the Baden Baden Meeting in Germany were essential platforms for establishing new strategic partnerships, increasing CCR's visibility, and identifying international market trends. These initiatives helped strengthen CCR's presence on the international stage and establish strategic partnerships with key players in the global insurance and reinsurance industry.

The year 2024 was marked by the rigorous execution of CCR's commercial strategy, with targeted and measurable actions aimed at reinforcing national leadership, expanding international influence, actively supporting local market skill development, and consolidating strategic partnerships. Building on these achievements, CCR intends to continue this momentum in 2025.

Human resources

Women and Men at the Heart of Performance

Capital humain

CCR considers human capital management as a key strategic lever to ensure sustainable performance and support its development. In 2024, the focus was on aligning skills with the requirements of modern reinsurance, strengthening core expertise, and investing in talent.

Staff

As of December 31, 2024, CCR had a total workforce of 122 employees, compared to 116 in 2023, representing an increase of 5.2%.

The gender distribution remains relatively balanced:

• 64% men

• 36% women

This growth in the workforce underscores CCR's commitment to enhancing internal capabilities while maintaining a diverse environment that promotes fruitful collaboration and collective performance.

Human resources

Training and Skills Development

Aware of the importance of continuous development, CCR continued its proactive training policy. The year 2024 was marked by:

- 176 training activities conducted,
- Representing a 92.1% completion rate of the annual training program,
- Covering technical, managerial, language, and regulatory areas.
- The training sessions were delivered in partnership with:
 - Specialized national institutions (IAHEF, EHEA, etc.),
 - International partners, particularly in the field of reinsurance.
 - These initiatives contributed to enhancing internal expertise, notably in facultative reinsurance, risk modeling, and regulatory compliance.

► Global turnover

In 2024, CCR recorded a significant growth in its global turnover, reaching 50,057 million DZD, compared to 46,546 million DZD in 2023, representing an increase of 7.5%.

This performance confirms the relevance of the implemented commercial strategy, based on the diversification of accepted business and rigorous risk selection, with a strong focus on technical profitability.

► Geographical Distribution of Underwriting

The year 2024 was also marked by a positive evolution in the geographical distribution of underwriting. International business accounted for 20% of the total portfolio, compared to 16% in 2023, reflecting CCR's sustained efforts to strengthen its presence in foreign markets.

At the same time, domestic business represented 80% of the portfolio, down from 84% in 2023, confirming the company's strategy to consolidate domestic market share while continuing its international expansion.

Total	14 724	9 816	16 862	12 478	14.5%

Based on the table analysis, the following observations can be made:

- The Property & Casualty (P&C) line recorded a moderate increase in gross claims (+11%), in line with portfolio growth.
- Personal insurance claims rose sharply (+87.5%), reflecting both the growth in production in this line and an accelerated claims settlement pace.

Technical performances

- The Maritime line showed a significant increase in settlements (+127.2%), explained by a return to normal claims processing levels in a context of business recovery.
- Conversely, the Aviation line experienced a substantial decrease in gross claims (-52.5%), due to the absence of major claims in 2024 and the closure in 2023 of a significant file that had heavily impacted the previous year.
- The Natural Catastrophe (CAT NAT) line had no settlements in 2024.

The claims-to-premiums (S/P) ratio, at 54.09%, although higher, remains generally under control considering the sustained growth of the business portfolio.

Retrocession

In 2024, retroceded premiums amounted to 19,350 million DZD, compared to 19,720 million DZD in 2023, representing a decrease of 1.9%. This trend reflects a strengthened retention policy on profitable business, in line with strategic directions aimed at improving technical results.

Retention

For the 2024 financial year, CCR's net retention showed sustained growth, reflecting a strong positioning on technically profitable business. The volume of retained premiums increased from 26,826 million DZD in 2023 to 30,707 million DZD in 2024, representing a rise of 14.47%.

Management of financial assets

Controlled Growth Focused on Profitability

In 2024, CCR continued its rigorous investment policy, based on prudent asset allocation, compliance with regulatory constraints, and the pursuit of stable returns.

This approach aims to preserve portfolio strength while enhancing technical surpluses and equity through profitable, diversified investments aligned with the company's risk profile. The investment portfolio grew by 11%, reaching 121,323 million DZD, compared to 109,136 million DZD in 2023. This increase reflects dynamic management of surpluses and efficient allocation of financial resources.

The annual investment yield stood at 4.46%, generating 5,408 million DZD in financial income, up 17% from 2023 (4,627 million DZD). This performance confirms CCR's ability to optimize its assets within a rigorous management framework.

General Expenses – Rigorous Management in the Service of Efficiency

In 2024, CCR's general expenses amounted to 3,772 million DZD, compared to 4,102 million DZD in 2023, reflecting a controlled decrease of 8%. This trend is part of a continuous effort to streamline costs and maintain strict expenditure management.

Operating expenses recorded a significant reduction of 19%, reaching 1,161 million DZD, compared to 1,434 million DZD the previous year. This decrease is largely due to the elimination of the professional activity tax, as well as efforts to optimize routine expenses, demonstrating a consistent focus on efficiency and budgetary discipline.

This approach highlights CCR's ability to adapt its cost structure while maintaining a high level of operational performance.

General Management

General Expenses – Rigorous Management in the Service of Efficiency

Over the 2020-2024 period, CCR's general expenses followed a generally controlled trajectory, with a marked decline in 2024. This trend was primarily driven by a significant reduction in operating expenses, down 19% compared to 2023, reflecting an active cost-control policy. The decrease observed in 2024 confirms the effectiveness of the optimization measures implemented, in a context where budgetary discipline remains a key performance lever.

► Strongly Improving Indicators, Demonstrating Sound Management

The results achieved in 2024 confirm the performance momentum established by CCR. Driven by the rigor of its technical policy, portfolio diversification, and active asset management, CCR shows significant improvement in its key indicators.

The reinsurance margin recorded a moderate growth of 2%, reflecting the robustness of underlying operations. The operational technical result increased by 28%, illustrating the effectiveness of risk management and control of technical expenses.

The financial result rose by 18%, supported by prudent and profitable management of the investment portfolio.

Ultimately, the net result from ordinary activities amounted to 7,635 million DZD, up 22% compared to 2023. This performance strengthens the company's profitability, with a return on share capital rising to 25.45%, compared to 20.90% the previous year, and a return on equity of 18.26%.

These results demonstrate CCR's ability to combine technical efficiency, financial profitability, and controlled growth in an environment marked by numerous sectoral challenges.

A Sustained Upward Trajectory of Results

Over the 2018-2024 period, CCR has demonstrated a steady and controlled evolution of its performance indicators.

- The reinsurance margin maintained stable growth, reflecting a solid and well-diversified technical portfolio.
- The net result, showing continuous increase, confirms the effectiveness of CCR's business model and its ability to deliver sustainable profitability, even in a fluctuating environment.

The marked acceleration observed in 2024 reflects the positive impact of strategic decisions made in recent years, combining technical rigor with optimization of financial resources.
